Excellent reading and all that I read has been in accordance with the council policies and future plan for both areas We are covering a massive land area and its important that funding for resources are secured to lead this plan forward, councillors should be encouraged to follow this closely and once adopted should be using this as a guideline in order to fulfil and support the work of the Council, potentially a separate working group should be set up to ensure the plan is delivered a replica of the Neighbourhood Renewal partnership would be an ideal model and delivery mechanism

Very important issues are addressed within the draft plan, what stands out for me is that without the infrastructure in place it will be difficult to potentially deliver all within but that's a point to be considered, it is particularly pleasing to see that mineral resources removal should be encouraged this is something that will produce a vibrant economy in the entire area, this is currently a controversial issue (Goldmine)but rejections to the development are more personal than genuine rejections. One only has to look at the benefits that Navan in County Meath are enjoying from Tara mines and the fact that the towns prosperity has grown real fast in the last number of years, infrastructure is becoming a problem in Navan referring to my initial comment being infrastructure needs to be in place as a priority

Mineral royalties should also be, or at least partly be returned to the local council area as additional monies in order to help the Council in their ongoing work, a precedent has been set in Scotland as a devolved Government they negotiated a deal keeping the Royalties within

The plan in its entirety can be fully implemented and deserves a lot of attention and resources in order to do so. The knock on effect from all this development within will see a very bright future for everyone Finally well done everyone involved an excellent well put together plan
